Laval To Serve as Civil Supervisor of All France

Pro-Nazi French Cabinet To Be Announced Today, Diplomatic Sources Say

New Regime Expected To Openly Declare Its Support of Germany; Vichy Calm in Face of Crisis

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
BERN, SWITZERLAND, Thursday, April 15. (AP)—Pierre Laval, vigorous pro-German leader, will serve as "civil supervisor of all France" in a new cabinet to be announced today in Vichy, reliable diplomatic sources said.

Amid strong hints that Laval's new regime would openly declare its solidarity with Germany, all Americans without urgent business in the unoccupied zone were asked by United States consulates last night to leave the country immediately.

Controls French Policy
Just what powers Laval will have in his new role were not clarified yet, but Fernand de Brinon, Vichy representative in Paris told German newspapermen that "Laval, not Petain, will determine French policy in the future."

In other words, the aged Petain who has been represented as trying to find some means of avoiding a diplomatic break with the United States, would become a mere figurehead.

Available reports indicated that Admiral Jean Darlan, present vice-premier, also would have his powers clipped immensely. The Berlin correspondent of the Bern newspaper Der Bund said Darlan would be designated as Petain's successor, and "entitled to participate" in ministerial councils.

Will Abolish Ministry
The French war ministry will be abolished, this report said.

One report circulating in Vichy attributed to the London radio was that Field Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt would become German military supervisor "for all of France," but diplomatic sources in Vichy were unable to confirm it.

But at any rate there were strong intimations from both Vichy and German-controlled Paris that Laval was charting a course of fuller collaboration with Germany.

Expect Statement Today
The Paris radio broadcaster said the neutral press might believe no important international changes would follow Laval's new accession to power, but actually "only a few hours separate us from a decision."

He implied that a communique expected from Vichy tomorrow would deal not only with the Vichy governmental changes but with "changed international relations."

The Paris press carefully refrained from comment on Laval's ascendancy, which it has long demanded.

Vichy Remains Calm
Vichy remained calm after its terrific flurry of yesterday, but the morrow's developments were eagerly awaited, and dispatches from there said some circles expected events to take a "surprising turn."

Laval was in Paris today, reporting his progress to his German collaborators and his French associates.

A Vichy dispatch said that during the day in Paris Laval issued a statement declaring he had granted no interview in the past few days to any foreign correspondent. The statement was intended (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Japanese Launch Sudden Offensive In Eastern Burma

Open Full-Fledged New Front in Effort To Isolate China

NEW DELHI, INDIA, April 15. (AP)—The Japanese launched a sudden, major offensive into the Shan states of eastern Burma today, opening a full-fledged new front to isolate China from Burma and India at a time when British and Chinese alike are fighting a desperate rear-guard action to delay the conquest of central Burma's oil wealth.

The offensive, launched in the Salween river region near the upper Thailand border where Japanese and Chinese troops have been sparing inconclusively for weeks, apparently was aimed at cutting the Mandalay-Lashio railroad.

Its object also would be to separate the Chinese forces in the Shan states from those in the Sittang river valley to the southwest.

The Mandalay-Lashio railroad is the last feeder link to the old Burma road, and also would be used as part of the new routes planned from India to China, across upper Burma.

Chungking reports disclosed the new offensive, nearly 200 miles northeast of the present active Burma battle zones, on a day in which the worn British army in the Irrawaddy valley was throwing its limited reserves into a fierce battle on the threshold of the oil fields, and while other Chinese troops were slowly retreating up the Sittang, toward Mandalay.

Fresh reinforcements were being thrown steadily into the new Salween offensive and Japanese aircraft were active in force.

'We Smacked Hell Out of 'Em,' Davies Says of Air Raid

Commander of Squadron Sent to Philippines Reports "Revenge"

By CLARK LEE
UNITED STATES ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Thursday, April 16. (AP)—Lieut. Col. J. H. Davies, who led one group of the United States army B25 bombers which attacked Japanese bases in the Philippines Monday and Tuesday, said today that "we smacked hell out of 'em and gained at least a little revenge for members of our squadron who fought in the front trenches in Bataan."

Davies and his crew had hoped to reach their objectives in time to relieve their friends on the Bataan front, but found that Bataan already had fallen and many of their friends were missing, killed, wounded or captured.

Cut Down the Score
Consequently they pressed home the attacks with complete disregard of their own safety and, as Davies said, "cut the score down a little."

"Our group downed at least one and possibly two seaplanes at Davao and sank one large ship and numerous smaller ones," said Davies, who comes from Piedmont, Calif.

"At Cebu we plastered to bits the shipping and the waterfront."

All the attacks, he said, were made in the face of heavy and quite accurate anti-aircraft fire through which all the American planes emerged unscathed.

Hit First at Cebu
"We hit them first at Cebu quite unexpectedly," said Davies. "We picked out the targets and let them have it. Some of the Japanese were standing on the waterfront, but they scattered in a hurry when the bombs started to fall. The ack ack opened up, but it was too late to hurt us."

Later in the same day they again attacked Cebu and this time sighted a 10,000-ton transport outside the harbor.

"One 500-pounder landed just afoot the vessel and it swung sharply to the left and began to list. It certainly was damaged heavily and perhaps sunk," Davies said.

The following day, Davies' group attacked Davao. He said the planes dropped full loads on the ships in Davao harbor, sinking a number of small vessels which appeared to be fishing boats but all of which had their guns ablaze.

Lovett and Testerman Accused of Killing FBI Agent

ABINGDON, Va., April 15. (AP)—Charles J. Lovett, 21, of Philadelphia, and James Edward Testerman, 22, pleaded innocent in Federal District Court here today to a charge of slaying Hubert J. Treacy, Jr., 28-year-old agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, as he sought to arrest them in an Abingdon cafe March 13 as army deserters.

A jury and two alternates was selected within an hour and twenty minutes without a single venireman expressing opposition to capital punishment or admitting the formation of an opinion which would prevent impartial consideration of the case.

Refused Separate Trials
After hearing argument in chambers in the presence of the defendants, Judge A. D. Barksdale overruled a defense motion for a severance of the cases for trial. The jurors were sent to a hotel for the night and arrangements made for the beginning of the case at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow.

HENDERSON MAY FREE FROZEN AUTO STOCKS

WASHINGTON, April 15. (AP)—Representative Woodrum (D-Va.) said today he had been assured by Leon Henderson, price administrator, that "serious consideration" was being given to releasing frozen stocks of automobiles after the government needs from such stocks had been met.

Woodrum advanced the suggestion in the House yesterday, and said today it aroused immediate interest among dealers holding frozen stocks. He said Henderson called him to inform him such a plan already was under study.

Confiscation by Edict
"We are by edict," Woodrum told the House yesterday, "confiscating the business of the automobile and tire people."

"Reference has been made to the government taking over these cars. We have appropriated, or when pending legislation passes will have appropriated, so far as we know, everything that the army, the navy and the government needs presently for transportation."

"I would hate to see the government get control of all these cars with the temptation that there would be to send them out to departments where they are not needed."

Wants Cars Released
"What should be done, and it ought to be done immediately, and it could be done, is for the government to take the cars that the government needs, and they know now what they need, out of these frozen stocks and immediately release the rest of them. It could be done in thirty days, and it ought to be done."

British Bombers Continue Raids In North France

Great Squadrons of Planes Do Much Damage in Ruhr Valley

By BLAKE SULLIVAN
LONDON, April 15. (AP)—Carrying forward a powerful aerial offensive that had scarcely been interrupted for thirty-six hours, great squadrons of British bombers and fighters assaulted Nazi occupied France by sunlight and darkness today to top off Tuesday night raids which left vast fires leaping in the war plants of Germany's Ruhr valley.

The air ministry said bomb-carrying Hurricane planes participated in two of several sweeps across northern France during the day and that bombers escorted by fighters attacked the Cherbourg docks. Three British fighter planes were listed as missing, with two German fighters definitely destroyed.

Heavy explosions thundered across the channel tonight from the area about Calais—an area raided all day, along with Boulogne, the Cherbourg docks and an enemy air-drome. The explosions came from the positions of new Nazi fortifications under urgent preparation for forced labor.

Then, when the bombers returned tonight, bursts of cannon fire could be heard high in the sky over the Downs behind Folkestone.

Last night's raids on the Ruhr, the sixth for that section in the last ten nights, were described by the air ministry in such terms as to suggest that they were among the most damaging yet delivered in the campaign to smash the war equipment for many divisions of Nazi troops before it could leave the factories for the Russian front.

Eleven British bombers were lost overnight.

Gives Up Movies To Fly Army Plane

HOLLYWOOD, April 15. (AP)—Young Tim Holt, adept at handling a horse and anxious to handle an airplane, traded a career in the movies today for the life of an army pilot.

Son of the long time film hero, Jack Holt, 25 year old Tim was accepted as a cadet in the army air corps. His wife and two-year-old son are to live at her parents' home on Long Island, N. Y.

Hugh S. Johnson Dies Suddenly in Washington Hotel

Famous Soldier and Writer Ill only a Few Hours with Pneumonia

WASHINGTON, April 15. (AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, the strong man of NRA, who added "chickadee," "crackdown" and many another hard-bitten expression to the American vernacular, died today at the age of 69.

In ill health for several months, he succumbed to pneumonia at a Washington hotel. Some twelve hours earlier, ignoring a physician's order to rest, he had written his daily newspaper column. With him when he died were his son, Lieut. Col. Kilbourne Johnson and his secretary, Miss Frances Robinson.

Served with Pershing
Born in Kansas in 1882 and reared in Oklahoma, Johnson was graduated from West Point in 1905 and his early career was one of service in the Philippines and other far away points. While still in the army he obtained a law degree from the University of California in 1916, and a few months later was with Pershing in Mexico.

During the World war, he was in charge of the selective service system—in fact he had the system ready for operation and the necessary forms printed before the declaration of war on Germany. He (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

10 Million More Workers Needed, McSherry Asserts

General Declares War Industries Must Have New Employees

CLEVELAND, April 15. (AP)—Ten million more workers will be absorbed into war industries this year, Brig. Gen. F. J. McSherry of WPB's labor division declared today.

Thus by next Jan. 1 the United States will have about seventeen and a half million people doing such work, the general told an interviewer.

"We had twenty-nine million people engaged in non-essential work last Jan. 1 and only about seven and a half million working on war production," he said. "By the end of this year we shall need an additional ten million workers in war production. Get that straight—an additional ten million."

"War production probably will be the refuge of 400,000 'little business men,' those who are going to find their normal work no longer existent. We now have about 3,900,000 unemployed. From that group war production should get about a million and a half."

"After September, when the peak of the harvest is over, we are looking for about 400,000 agricultural workers to come into war factories. We're counting on 2,000,000 new workers this year—young men just out of school."

Inflict Heavy Damage on Enemy Bases in Three Ports and Sink or Damage Several Ships

By C. YATES McDANIEL
U. S. ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, April 15. (AP)—In the most spectacular aerial thrust of the Pacific war, thirteen American army bombers crossed the vast stretches from Australia and heavily assaulted Japanese bases on three Philippine islands to redeem before the world the first installment of General MacArthur's pledge that the invader would yet be cast out of his lodgements there.

This great striking force, which covered 4,000 miles in the round trip to Manila and at least 2,800 miles to and from Davao on Mindanao Island, accomplished its mission with the loss of but a single plane—and that plane's crew was saved.

Commanded by Gen. Royce
It was personally commanded by Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce, whose triumphant arrival back in Australia at the head of his squadron was announced tonight.

Just as he climbed from his plane the general, by the direction of President Roosevelt, was awarded the distinguished flying cross. General Rush Lincoln making the presentation in behalf of Lieut. General George H. Brett, Allied air commander for the southwest Pacific.

Decorated with the cross too were Lieut. Col. John Hubert Davies of Piedmont, California, and Capt. Frank P. Boston, a native of Maine and an alumnus (1929) of that state's university.

In telling about the raid, Davies indicated that the Americans landed somewhere in the Philippines, since he said Cebu was attacked twice in one day and that Davao was attacked the following day. He commanded one group of the 10 B-25 bombers participating in the raid. The other three planes were B-17 flying fortresses.

Bombers Refuel
The flying fortresses might make the round trip without stopping. The B-25s, however, could not have remained in the air continuously for two days. They are understood to have a round-trip range, loaded, of about 1,800 miles, so the inference was that they refueled and even took on more bombs at some secret American base in the Philippines.

In all the bombers wrought this damage:
At Davao, on Mindanao Island—an enemy bomber destroyed and several damaged; two enemy transports hit, one probably sunk; one enemy seaplane shot down and two damaged; troop concentrations bombed; docks and warehouses damaged.

At Cebu, on Cebu Island—three enemy transports sunk and two others hit in addition to several near misses against other vessels; three enemy planes shot down and several damaged around; docks also damaged.

At Batangas, on Luzon Island—an enemy cargo vessel, believed to have been carrying military supplies, sunk.

Gen. MacArthur Declared in Full Command of the Southwest Pacific

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
WASHINGTON, April 15. (AP)—Representatives of the United States, Australian and New Zealand governments emphasized today that there was complete agreement on the extent of General Douglas MacArthur's command in the southwest Pacific.

They expressed the view, as did President Roosevelt at a press conference yesterday, that the American military leader was supreme commander of all United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific war theater.

Robbins Denies Report of Tungsten Shortage and Agreement with Krupp

WASHINGTON, April 15. (AP)—W. G. Robbins, president of the Carboloy Company, denying Justice Department allegations, asserted tonight there was no shortage of tungsten carbides for war production and that the output of this product was forty to fifty times as great as it was in 1938.

Appearing before the Senate Patents committee, John Henry Levin, an assistant to the attorney general, had charged that a patent agreement between Carboloy and the Krupp interests of Germany had resulted in controlled, unduly high prices and injured the defense effort.

Carboloy is a wholly owned subsidiary of General Electric. Its product, an extremely hard metal, is used for the cutting edges of machine tools, and is considered indispensable in defense production.

After waiting out on the committee hearing earlier in the day, Robbins called in reporters tonight and issued a statement denying Levin's allegations, and asserting that such accusations were "seriously influencing public morale and destroying confidence."

As for the alleged shortage, he said there was no scarcity and never had been any Carboloy, he (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Maryland Minute Men Enlistments Show Large Gains

Strength Reaches 5,350 and May Climb to 10,000 Men

(By The Associated Press)

Maryland minute men officials said today an increasing rush of volunteers had brought the minute men's strength to 5,350.

Minute men officers reported to Governor O'Connor, organizer of the home guard force, that enlistments had increased particularly in the past ten days. One official estimated the minute men would be 10,000 strong within a few weeks.

The force has not yet been organized into units which will consist of fifty men, commanded by a captain and two lieutenants. Governor O'Connor is expected to announce the formation of the individual units within a few days.

Many minute men volunteers were reported in the past week or so on the Eastern Shore. Howard county reported 100 minute men applications this week, enough to form two companies. Only enough men to form half a company had volunteered previously.

Brig. Gen. Francis Petrott, adjutant general of the Maryland state guard and supervising the minute men until a commanding officer is appointed, said interest in the minute men was booming.

Montgomery county, he said, was especially active in the force. Uniforms, some small arms and two machine guns were furnished that county's minute men.

Gen. Petrott said he hoped enough would volunteer to permit the formation of a unit in every Maryland community.

It was thought originally that sportsmen would form the bulk of the minute men as they must provide their own arms. Yet, officials said, there was a large number of applications from non-sportsmen.

A long float beneath the fuselage—just taking off," said Davies.

"I called the bombardier over the telephone.

"Hub," I said, "see that baby? I'm going down to give you a crack at him."

"I put our big ship into a dive. We were doing some 300 miles an hour when we came level with the Jap to let the bomber shoot."

"Our midship guns opened up and I saw pieces of fuselage tearing out of that Rising Sun Jap plane, which was less than 100 feet away. Also what looked like smoke until I realized it was the rear-gunner in the two-place Jap plane popping at us. I upped the throttles and told our rear gunner to cut loose. He did, cutting one wing off the enemy ship, which dived out of control."

"Meanwhile two other Japanese seaplanes attacked us from the rear. One of them did an extremely fine bit of acrobatics to get a couple of bursts at us, but fortunately missed."

Japs "Hot Fliers"

"Those Japanese certainly are hot fliers," said our seaplanes are excellent."

Later the same day the Davies group again attacked Davos, concentrating on enemy troops, which were bombed at low level.

"That was the most satisfactory mission of all," one pilot said, "because we had undergone numerous dive-bombing attacks while we were on Bataan. We knew how our bombing would encourage our own troops and affect the enemy."

"We zoomed over so low that the concussion of our own bombs shook our ship," one flier said. "We laid our eggs squarely in the Japanese fox holes and trenches."

The B-25 is "a hell of a lot of airplane," the pilots agreed.

Curtin of Australia said his government considered MacArthur supreme commander of all Allied forces in the southwest Pacific with power to take any steps he thinks fit.

In Washington, Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said he doubted there was any confusion since MacArthur had complete communications with the secretary of war and the army chief of staff.

No Hitch, Evatt Says

Then, following a lengthy meeting of the Pacific War Council at the White House, Australia's member, Herbert V. Evatt, who is also minister of external affairs, told reporters they were assuming there was a "hitch" over the extent of the general's command.

"There is no hitch whatever in General MacArthur's command," he said. "Any suggestion to the contrary has no authority whatever. The jurisdiction of General MacArthur was settled in the course of a few hours by the United States and Australian governments."

The youthful defendants were captured at an abandoned house on the outskirts of Abingdon the day of the shooting after police's tear gas bombs forced them to raise a white handkerchief in surrender.

After shooting of the two FBI men, they had fled from the cafe and hidden in the basement of the building. A posse of more than 100 surrounded the house and exchanged shots with the fugitives before they marched out with their hands in the air.

Bretons Start Street Fighting in St. Nazaire

LONDON, Thursday, April 16 (AP)—Bretons at St. Nazaire took up sporadic street fighting against the Germans with British firearms after the spectacular British raid on the German-held French port March 28, the Daily Mail said today.

The Bretons managed to get hold of both guns and ammunition after the raid, began shooting immediately and have engaged in desultory frays ever since the raid, the Mail story, dated Madrid, continued.

The Mail's informants said a large number of hostages had been shot—one report put the number as high as 500—and that since the raid all prisons and concentration camps in the area have been filled to capacity.

said, has been able to "take care of every United States order," and has been supplying England and Russia as well.

"It is asserted that we maintained artificially high prices," the statement continued, "even though during the period in question the Carbonyl Company made six price reductions in spite of the fact that it was continuously operating in the red."

The statement also denied what it called inferences that Carbonyl and General Electric had restricted production and were "thereby slowing the war effort."

"It was because General Electric appreciated the possibilities of tungsten carbide and secured ownership of the vital patents then owned by Krupp," the statement said, "that the government and war industries can now obtain all the carbides they need."

"If we had not done so the United States would have been at the mercy of German sources of supply just as England was at the outbreak of the war. Fortunately Carbonyl had the production capacity at that time, and still has to ship enormous quantities of carbides to England."

Working with Government

"For years, Carbonyl and General Electric have been working closely with the War department and government arsenals."

During the day, Chairman Bone (D-Wash.) of the Patents committee charged that some major corporations had been conducting a "sort of super-government behind closed doors" in controlling supplies vital to war production. His comment followed Lewin's testimony on the Carbonyl case.

Senator Clark (D-Idaho) remarked that large corporations usually tried to keep import duties low on tungsten, manganese and similar raw materials and at the same time sought high tariffs on imports of products finished from these materials.

Bone agreed, saying that General Electric and Krupp "have parcelled out the whole world" and the "tariff law becomes a joke" if the "law can be rigged or thumb-rigged" in this manner.

The war over, he withdrew from the army and entered business, eventually becoming a close associate and advisor of Bernard M. Baruch, who was instrumental in drawing Franklin D. Roosevelt's attention to him during the campaign of 1932.

Became Public Figure

Never a public figure theretofore, Johnson forcefully and acutely impressed himself upon the public consciousness as the hard driving, tough-talking administrator of the National Recovery Administration and its Blue Eagle.

NRA was a system whereby more than 500 industries agreed to abide by stipulated codes of fair practices and labor relations.

When it was declared unconstitutional he had already resigned as its administrator, but he defended it to the end.

There followed a period of ever growing animosity between himself and the administration, which he contended was run by radicals and was leading to dictatorship. He supported President Roosevelt for reelection in 1936, but in 1940 was one of the earliest backers of Wendell L. Willkie.

Radcliffe Says U. S. Will Win the War

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 15 (AP)—Senator George Radcliffe (D-Md.) said tonight the United States is in this war to win and "we are going to win, but it will take an effort such as the American people have never known before."

He spoke at an annual dinner given by the County Trust Company and three Annapolis lumber firms in Carvel hall.

Radcliffe said he doubted if people yet realized the tremendous effort that would be necessary to win the war, which presents the "most gigantic problems any people has ever known."

"In this land we believe in criticism," said Radcliffe, "and criticism is helpful unless it hurts morale or aids the enemy. If the tongue is wisely used it is helpful. But," he added, "we can't win the war by criticism alone. It also requires constructive activity."

Rep. Lansdale Sasser (D-Md.) explained the recent WPB order halting all private construction except under government supervision, and said permits and licenses would be handled henceforth by regional PHA offices.

U. S. Places Ban On Shipments to French No. Africa

Step Taken Because of Probable Return of Laval

By WADE WERNER

WASHINGTON, April 15 (AP)—The concern with which the United States regards Pierre Laval's sudden return to power in Vichy was sharply underlined today when shipments of non-military supplies from this country to French North Africa were abruptly halted.

Recall of Ambassador William D. Leahy from his post in Vichy was understood to be under consideration, but there was no official indication that a decision had been reached.

Leahy May Return

Asked at his press conference whether Admiral Leahy might be called home "for consultation," Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles said merely he had nothing to disclose on that point for the moment.

Welles emphasized, however, that all pending arrangements with Vichy such as shipments to French North Africa and the dispatch of a Red Cross ship to unoccupied France had been halted.

It was just a week ago that State Department announced that two French vessels in New York Harbor, loaded with food, fuel and cotton goods for North Africa, would be permitted to sail. Arrangements had been made to send a Red Cross ship to unoccupied France with medical supplies, condensed milk and children's clothing, and discussions were under way as to the possibility of shipping good to French prisoners of war in Germany.

Welles said he had received some reports on the Vichy situation from Ambassador Leahy, and that according to these cables the composition of the new French government would not be announced for another two days. Until the new lineup is announced and the new government has taken over he could not, he said, make any announcement as to the policy of the United States.

Many Tires in Storage

The surveys showed what long has been known to tire makers and retailers—that a lot of tires were purchased last year. They did not discount, of course, the number of new tires that were bought at retail and put away for future use.

As early as last summer some of the tire manufacturers said they had reports of a sizeable volume of such buying. It was based apparently upon the same fear psychology that sent last year's retail new car buying to almost record proportions.

Even this "advance buying" however, will add but little to the pool of tires that will be needed to transport essential workers between now and 1944.

General Brett, not discussing the great feeling of jubilation everywhere held here, issued a statement making plain that what had been done was only the barest of beginnings and emphasizing the profound importance of the success of Royce's raid over such tremendous distances.

Brett Praises Royce

"General Royce," said General Brett, "volunteered and was selected to command this most important mission."

"His accomplishment will undoubtedly be told in detail at a later date, but now it is desired to point out that he has typified the tremendous importance of the air arm."

"He has demonstrated to the highest degree that spirit of offensive action so vital to the winning of any military conflict."

"He took the fight into enemy territory, created dismay and destruction at a time most important to our forces and he has returned."

"The exacting requirements of preparations, under the restrictions and limitations imposed upon our forces by the lack of equipment and maintenance facilities, tremendously increased the difficulties. I cannot too highly emphasize my pride in the work accomplished by the American forces participating in this mission."

the very sections where transportation will be most needed.

Even the individual with new tires on his car—or in his basement—has something to think about in the current situation. It has been reiterated in authoritative quarters that there will be no rubber for civilian replacements before 1944.

That does not mean, either, that a lot of rubber will be available immediately upon the arrival of 1944.

Russia Prepares Commanders for Spring Offensive

Break Through German Lines in the Important Bryansk Sector

By EDDY GILMORE

KUIBYSHEV, U.S.S.R., April 15 (AP)—Fighting in the slush of a most definite mass battle-line, the Red army was reported tonight to have achieved a breakthrough in the first lines of the important Bryansk sector of the central front while preparing its commanders for the shock of the heralded German spring offensive.

Although authorities made clear that no decisive battles were in progress, front dispatches said the Red army force which broke the first defenses of the Bryansk salient—now reputedly under the command of the former Nazi commander-in-chief, Field Marshal Walter von Brauchitsch—was approaching the second line of fierce fighting.

Kill 3,000 Germans

The Bryansk bulge, 200 miles southwest of Moscow, is one of half a dozen major strongpoints which the Germans have held all winter at grievous cost, with a view to using them for spring offensive bases. In early April, today's dispatches disclosed, Red army units under General Popov killed 3,000 Germans in this sector and found new rifles and machine-guns obviously brought up for springing action.

London sources believed the Russians now had firmly established at least one and possibly more bridgeheads over the Desna river preliminary to severing rail lines and isolating the Bryansk garrison.

Hard Fighting in North

With 1,200 Germans reported killed recently, on the front north of west of Moscow, hard fighting was continuing there, also. (German reports said dive bombers were assaulting Russian troops and tanks near Lake Ilmen, attacking stalled Red ice crossings over which the Red army was moving reserves to its front lines.)

Some Welcome Economy But Only a Dribble

IT IS GOOD to read that our Treasury watchdog, Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, is getting some help in his admirable economy efforts.

Chairman Vinson, of the House Naval Affairs committee, is out with a statement estimating that approximately $250,000,000 has been saved through renegotiated contracts as a result of the activities of this and other committees.

Of the total savings thus made, Vinson said, $150,000,000 was in navy contracts and the rest in army business.

It is to be hoped that this good work will go on apace, and more especially that Senator Byrd's specific recommendations will receive the consideration of Congress that it long ago should have received.

The tardiness about this is considerable of a mystery to most citizen taxpayers.

Senator Byrd, however, is continuing to whack away at the huge abnormal growth of nonessential expense. In his latest plea he pointed out that by the abolition of four unnecessary governmental agencies, 97,720 payrollers could be released and no less than 9,716,867 square feet of floor space could be saved in government buildings in Washington, where there is such fantastic congestion and confusion that frantic efforts are made to throw up more buildings at added public expense in order to find room for the hangers-on.

Abolition of the CCC, the NYA, the WPA and the FSA, Byrd declares, would save $1,500,000,000 on the basis of current appropriations. All these agencies are not wartime essentials but were created for the peacetime emergency of the depression. In addition, he contends, half a billion can be saved in other directions, all of which have been noted in detail heretofore.

The senator notes what a godsend such economy would be to the state of Maryland. It is an average state, he says, and a two-billion-dollar reduction in non-defense spending would mean a saving of $40,000,000 for it. The amount of income taxes paid by Marylanders in 1941 was $72,000,000, which means, the senator pointed out, that the recommended savings in nonessential spending would amount to sixty per cent of the total income taxes paid last year by Marylanders.

For the war program, the saving would give tremendous aid. As translated into terms of the war effort by the senator, the sum would buy, every year, 8,000 heavy, four-engined bombers, which have proved the most effective implement of war, 1,000 of which could go into the Pacific; or 48,000 medium tanks, or 25,000 heavy tanks, or twenty battleships, or sixty of the largest cruisers, or 200 destroyers, or 400 submarines.

Worth saving? Considering the war bills coming at seventeen and eighteen billion a clip, it certainly is.

Congress should heed Senator Byrd's cries for this saving, which, in the opinion of this newspaper, reflect the wishes of the people generally, and have them effected without further costly delay, for, as the senator says, the outlook is that we are in for a long and desperate war.

A Great American Who Will Be Missed

READERS of The Cumberland News will miss the sprightly and dynamic writings of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, which have appeared regularly in his daily column on this page, and will share in the general sorrow of the country over its loss of a great American who contributed outstanding service as a soldier and an administrator through the years of an unusually active career.

One outstanding achievement, which has been proved in two great wars, was his origination of the selective draft system and its rules and policies. Another was his notable work in striving to make the National Recovery Administration workable against odds which finally bore it down, but which served only to emphasize his brilliant ability and his soldierly qualities, for, if Johnson could not make it work, nobody else could, and he could have made it useful if he had been provided with the proper structure and tools.

Gen. Johnson was a man of ripe experience, as his biography shows, and his writings were valuable by reason thereof and also by reason of the human quality of his comment. Terse, crisp, outspoken, fearless and vigorously picturesque in colorful expression, he displayed an unerring sense of popular sentiment and wrote in a timely and appropriate manner that commanded both respect and fellowship.

The present war emergency could well have employed the general's exceptional talents, and it is a great pity that a personal pique and umbrage in a certain high quarter prevented.

Who is to supplant Gen. Johnson's popular and always interesting column on this page is not known as yet, but The News will seek to fill the gap as best it can, hoping that he will have a worthy successor although the niche he filled as a commentator can never be occupied in exactly the same way in which he so admirably filled it.

Too Much Wavering And Backtracking

WPB DIRECTOR NELSON has announced that by the end of May the production of so many manufactured and processed products will be reduced or extended that the people will have to lower their standard of living and "hundreds of thousands of men will lose jobs" and some businesses "will be wiped out."

The people have been adequately forewarned of this extreme measure. Since the adoption of the Lend-Lease act, a year ago, it has been evident that conversion of this country into the "arsenal of democracy" would compel the people to make severe sacrifices. Since Pearl Harbor, progressive adjustments to war economy have been accompanied by official advice that drastic reductions in civilian standards were inevitable. Now Mr. Nelson has given the final warning in plenty of time for preparations for full co-operation.

Although many jobs have been lost and many industries, including the whole automotive distribution business, have been practically halted, the people have taken the disruption of their affairs in good spirit. There is no evidence that they will fall short of full co-operation when every one is affected, which will be about the end of May.

The government should, however, do its part by making its decisions only after careful thought, and then issuing its orders so that all the people can understand and all will know what to do. There has been too much wavering and backtracking in official circles. It confuses the people. It shakes their confidence in their leaders. But it can be easily corrected by reason and firmness on the part of the leaders. That is all that the people ask. In any crisis they will prove their strength and loyalty.

Debris and Dirt In The Streets

COMPLAINTS are reported as numerous in Baltimore city that broken glass, nails and other debris in the streets are damaging and shortening the life of motor vehicle tires which in most instances will not be replaceable under wartime rationing. In this respect, the city of Cumberland has a fairly good record. Its streets are kept reasonably clear of such damaging litter.

This is not to say, however, that the community registers a hundred per cent perfect. But no general complaint such as is reported in the chief city of the state has been heard here.

Some complaints have been heard that dust, cinders and tiny grit particles are plentiful in some of the downtown streets at times and that when a good wind blows the result is most annoying as well as hurtful to the eyes.

This, of course, is a situation resulting from the passage of so many railroad trains through the heart of the city.

Merchants generally help this condition by sweeping the sidewalks regularly in front of their stores. But the dust goes into the streets.

A more frequent flushing of the downtown streets from the fire hydrants might be useful. The street and fire departments might help things by getting together on such a program.

There's lots of talk about Fifth and Sixth columns but on Page One it's usually the seventh and eighth which carries the big story of the day.

The Horsehair Snakes

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I used to believe that if you take a living hair out of a horse's tail and put it into water and watch it carefully for days and days—and maybe for weeks—it will turn into a thin little snake at last.

I made that great experiment many years ago. My brother and I did it. We watched that horsehair for weeks and weeks. My father explained to us that it was quite impossible for a horsehair to become a living creature and that even if we did find a slender hairlike creature in the water—that would not prove a hair had become a snake. He told us we were wasting our time, but we didn't believe him. A Mexican boy down by the railroad tracks had sworn to us that this would happen; he'd seen it happen and of course his word was more convincing than all the grownup wisdom of a mere father.

So we watched and we watched and we never did see that snake. We didn't see it but we never quite convinced ourselves that we were wrong and that father was right. Somehow we just missed and if we'd kept a closer watch we would have SEEN that horsehair become a snake.

We didn't get that folklore of childhood out of our systems and I suppose that none of us ever do. We continue to believe forever that horsehairs turn into little black snakes.

We believe that Wishing will Get Things Done.

We are sure that Dreaming is more effective than Doing.

We are certain that Envy will turn to Possession at last.

And we are stubbornly convinced that Wool-Gathering is better than Thinking any day in the week.

Somehow miracles will happen. We will get things done without really doing them; a rich uncle will die and leave us his fortune; we shall be loved without deserving it; and the ships we have neglected to send to sea will come back to us laden with the wealth of the East.

And we, being right of course will prove that father, of course, was wrong.

Price Curb Calls For Mopping Aids, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, April 15.—There appears to be no end to the lack of frankness and co-ordination among high government officials.

When the President presented the budget for fiscal 1943, he made it very clear that he wanted a tax program which would add $9,000,000,000, ($7,000,000,000 from general taxes and $2,000,000,000 from social security taxes).

There was no ambiguity about the amounts involved. The budget tables were prepared on the assumption that collection would be larger by $9,000,000,000, and the deficit was calculated accordingly.

It is not unreasonable to assume that Mr. Morgenthau was informed, if not consulted, about the president's original program.

And what has Mr. Morgenthau proposed to the Congress? He offered a tax bill which in a full year would yield the $7,000,000,000 required.

In 1942-43 it will surely yield less than that. Without the collection at source aspects it may yield as little as $4,500,000,000 or $5,000,000,000.

Past Practice

This might be an unimportant matter, were it not for the fact that it has been a practice of Mr. Morgenthau in the past. Is he afraid that we can't "take" a larger tax program?

We can, Mr. Morgenthau. We are giving up more important things than our income. But we want to know what it is we are being asked to do.

I don't suppose that the secretary of the treasury is of the opinion that the situation has improved since January. It has not. If we needed nine billions of additional taxes then, we need at least that amount now.

As a matter of record, the inflationary threat has increased considerably since January. Military expenditures are now running at an annual rate of $26,000,000,000. We are doing our best to increase them, and they are bound to increase from month to month.

Prices Go Up

As a consequence, prices are rising. Production of consumer goods is being reduced drastically, and must be cut to the bone if we are to meet our military program.

But civilian buying is continuing at a high rate and stocks are being depleted. However full the cupboards are they can't last indefinitely. The flow of income continues, while the flow to the cupboards has become a trickle.

Mr. Henderson, who once was of the opinion that he could control prices without much additional taxation, has seen the handwriting on the wall.

He now thinks that the President's original tax goal is too low. He wants more than nine billions collected in taxes under a new tax program.

Has Doubts Now

He is beginning to have those doubts, which some of us have expressed in the early stages of the discussion, about the effectiveness of selective price control. He is reported as considering wage and profit controls and the fixing of prices at retail.

The president, too, has stated that he is studying over-all methods of controlling inflation.

I could say, "I told you so," over this development, because it completely confirms my original opinion about the effectiveness of selective price control. I cite it here only to show that there is at last general agreement that consumers have too much money to spend.

Mopping Necessary

Whether taxation alone is adequate to prevent inflation is not

War Labor Board Ruling in Plainfield Case Is Full of Explosives, Sullivan Says

By MARK SULLIVAN

The War Labor Board last week imposed what is known as "maintenance of union membership" on a company and its employees at Plainfield, N. J., The Walker-Turner Company. This company is comparatively small, it has only 293 employees. But the principle involved, "membership maintenance," is extremely far-reaching.

Before the secretary of the treasury gets around to asking for more, he might at least present a program to yield as much as the president requested.

Maryland Farm Musings

By the Extension Service of the University of Maryland

The annual vocational field day for Maryland members of the Future Farmers of America will be held April 25 at the University of Maryland in conjunction with a livestock show by members of the Block and Bridge Club. It is announced by Dr. H. F. Cotterman, assistant dean of agriculture and supervisor of vocational agriculture for Maryland. Dr. Cotterman says that about 200 farm boys from all sections of the State are expected to attend.

All . . . employees who are . . . members . . . of Local No. 435, United Electric, Radio and Machine Workers of America, shall, for the duration of this contract, remain in good standing as a condition of continued employment with the company.

(The duration of the contract is one year)

Within those words are two heavy compulsions—first, compulsion on the member of a union that he remain a member; second, compulsion on the company that it discharge any employee who ceases to be a member.

Wide Difference in Rights

Now if this were merely a matter of private contract voluntarily arrived at by the employer and the union, such compulsions would be novel. In that case, membership maintenance would be merely a variation of the closed shop or union shop—in which the employer voluntarily contracts with the union to employ only union members. Many persons strongly disapprove the union shop on principle. But in fact voluntary contracts for union shops have existed for years in many industries and individual plants, and have worked satisfactorily.

But, between the union shop, or membership maintenance when voluntarily arrived at by private contract—between that and the present case, there is literally all the difference in the whole world of human rights. In the present case—and this is the new and far-reaching principle here introduced—the two compulsions are enforced by the government. Here the government of the United States orders every member of a union to remain a member—or lose his job. And the government orders the employer to discharge any worker whenever the union says he must be discharged.

The way it works, as set down in the present order of the War Labor Board, is this: The union serves notice on the company that a worker has failed to keep up his membership, or has in some respect violated union rules, and that the union has decided to expel him. Thereupon the company must discharge the worker.

In effect, the company becomes an agent of the union (and also of the government). The company may prefer to keep the worker, they may regard him as the best man in the plant, the company may prefer to promote him. All that does not matter. The company must discharge him just because the union says he must be discharged.

True, there is in the War Labor Board's order a provision for a strange sort of arbitration. The company, when ordered to discharge a worker, may ask for an arbitrator. But the arbitrator passes only on one strictly limited question—whether the worker actually violated "any of the terms or conditions of the constitution and by-laws of the union."

It does not matter what the worker's reason for not keeping up his membership in the union. It may be a reason of judgment, he may prefer to belong to a different union, or no union. It may be a reason of conscience—he may disapprove the course of the union, or of CIO as a national organization, about public questions. As a matter of fact, considerable numbers of CIO members have withdrawn because of positions CIO or some of its leaders took on political or other controversial questions, outside the field of labor.

Explosives Contained

Government requiring a man to remain a member of a specified union, has some of the nature of requiring a man to remain a member of a specified political party, or a specified religion. And while the present government order is merely that a man remain a member, the next step, easy to foresee, will be to require that he become a member. This contains the explosives that have given rise to some of the bitterest and most prolonged strife in history.

Under the War Labor Board's present order and apparent present policy, the penalty on a worker who resists government compulsion to remain a member of the union, is loss of his job. There is also a penalty on the employer who resists government compulsion to discharge a worker. The penalty will be seizure of his plant by the government. This penalty has already been enforced upon two companies who resisted compliance with a War Labor Board order.

Forty Miles An Hour

From the Christian Science Monitor

Science-man-hour speed laws imposed in several states at President Roosevelt's request will, in convenience no one. They will only do away with the luxury and peril of fast driving.

Lower speeds, while saving tires and gasoline, will also save wear and tear on car parts—not to mention the driver. And any factor tending to reduce the pace of the nation's 40,000,000 automobile drivers is certain to have an effect in lowering last year's inexcusably high total of 40,000 highway fatalities.

Most motorists do not realize that an average set of five new tires can be made to last 40,000 miles. About one-half that mileage is usually lost through carelessness, neglect and wasteful driving practices. The 40,000-mile equation is reached thus:

Failure of Cripps Mission Not Fatal, Paul Mallon Says

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 15.—You can hear more softly-told reasons why the Cripps mission failed than there are Moslems and Hindus. But the all-pervading one which even sticks out of the official statements, is that neither side wanted success sufficiently to get it.

There are supplemental tales like the one that Winston Churchill felt Cripps' hot breath on the back of his neck in Whitehall politics and sent him into the Indian political maze to cool him off, expecting full well he would never come out running—at least not running against Churchill for the prime ministry.

That one was in circulation soon after Cripps left London. It is no doubt based only upon conjecture, and the conjecture will be strengthened in the minds of some people now by the way the trip turned out. Mr. Cripps certainly slowed down.

Officials here just throw up their hands, say something about the inexplicable intricacies of Indian politics, and let explanations go.

Beyond Explanation

Why any nation, no matter how deeply it has suffered from past grievances, or how thoroughly it is criss-crossed with conflicting political interests, would permit itself to be left standing weakly disunited, with the Japs already at their front door, is more than most officials here want to try to explain.

The outlook for India is bad, but not as bad as it might be. The subornment of the British and Indian statesmen, of course, almost constitutes an invitation to Japan to move in, whether or not the Jap military leaders had planned it at this time. A defense which elects to be weak by choice invites attack.

The heart of India is geographically on her sleeve—the one nearest the Japs. Ninety per cent of her steel and engineering industry is around Calcutta in the eastern arm of the country, within easy reach of the Jap bombing fields of Burma.

If the Japs could roll through Calcutta to a line 200 miles west of the city, they would have all the main Indian industries and particularly all the armament production within their grasp.

Morale of Workers Weak

The workers in Indian factories cannot be expected to act like those in England during bombing raids. Their morale has not been solidified by settlement of internal political differences. Ninety per cent of the population in 1931 was illiterate (unable to write a letter or read an answer).

The government has issued an ordinance that the workers must remain at their posts during air raids, but there is no reason to expect them to act differently from those in Rangoon. The Burmese workers cracked in panic at the first bombs, and production ceased from that point.

The food situation is not good. The eastern section relied much on Burmese rice production, now cut off. A shortage of wheat may aggravate conditions in the north and west, especially in a nation whose disunity already has been publicly expressed in the stubbornness of its political leaders. Food riots may soon be necessary to avoid riots and maintain production.

Fifth columnists abound there. A fairly good secret service, the C.I.D., organized by the British but including Indians, is not good enough.

Remedy Possible

But, as the politicians on both sides must have known, these defects could have been remedied by an agreement in only one really important respect—morale.

No doubt Nehru and his followers will resist the Jap aggressors, and the plan of defense made by the British-controlled army will be carried out. Followers of Gandhi cannot be expected to alter their pacifist politics even when the Japs come in the door with bayonets. They apparently prefer death to war in any form.

Thus, while the failure of the Cripps mission is much against our best interests, it need not be fatal, and anyway there is nothing we can do about it. Mr. Roosevelt's emissary, Louis Johnson, did as much as he could—and more, according to some British comments.

If the normal tire life is 20,000 miles, add 5000 miles for each of the following practices: regular rotation of the spare tire; keeping down to forty miles an hour; maintaining proper air pressure in castings; stepping gently on the gas or the brake in starting, going around curves and stopping. Even at forty miles an hour, the motorist wastes twelve percent of his rubber as compared to lower speeds.

There is small likelihood that gearing the nation's pace to forty miles an hour or less will discomfort anyone. On the contrary, the national emergency will give motorists new opportunity to learn that little time is lost in traveling slowly and that there can be as much enjoyment in going places as in getting there.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

SOY BEANS RATE PLACE IN VICTORY GARDENS

Although many commercial products are made from soybeans, this vegetable is also tops for food value. Edible soybeans are full of vitamins, yet lacking in starch, thus making them perfect for reducing diets.

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, the soybean is a bushy, erect, hairy plant. The small pods cling in clusters to the main stalk. The tough, hairy pods have pea-like seeds, two or three to a pod.

All small and large gardens should include a patch of soybeans. They are grown just the same as bush lima beans. For winter use the beans are dried.

The dried soybeans contain 40 percent protein of the highest quality, 15 to 20 percent of an excellent fat. They have almost no carbohydrates and are a large source of Vitamins B and G.

Desertion is charged by Mrs. Bertha Mary Emerick of 202 Springdale street, in a suit filed yesterday asking an absolute divorce from Leo Curtis Emerick, of Fairhope, Pa. O'Connor Wants Guards To Keep Rifles ANNAFOLIS, Md., April 15. (AP)—Appealing in behalf of all coastal states, Governor O'Connor has urged the War Department to modify its order recalling rifles from state guards for use of the regular army. O'Connor asked Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson to permit Atlantic and Pacific coast state guards to keep their rifles and not be forced to use shotguns as the War department has suggested.

"It is imperative that the best arms be furnished in states located on the ocean seaboard," O'Connor said. "If the War department must recall rifles, I urge that the allocation be left intact in states both on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, which are the most vulnerable spots in the nation."

O'Connor declared he concurs with the statement of Brig. Gen. Dwight H. Mohr, state guard commander, that it would be "suicidal" if shotguns are substituted for rifles. "Recently," he added, "a War department inspection of the Maryland guard brought out clearly that the standing, discipline and training of the Maryland guard was of the highest order. The fact Maryland units were completely armed was an incentive to intensify their drilling and training."

Paul M. Fletcher was attorney for the cab firm, while Edward J. Ryan was counsel for Beck.

Young Seaman Is Ready To Brave Axis Bombs Again

Marylander's Experiences Enough To Last Most Persons a Lifetime

SALISBURY, Md., April 15 (AP)—A young Deal Island seaman, 21-year-old Harvey Webster, has had enough experiences to last most persons a lifetime, but he's ready to go back to sea despite Axis bombs, torpedoes and shipwreck.

Webster's ship, after surviving Axis bombers in the Suez canal, ran aground in the Red sea, and finally was torpedoed off Trinidad February 22 but the young Marylander and his mates were picked up by a British schooner after forty-eight hours in lifeboats.

Home for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Bertie Webster of Deal Island, Webster hopes he can sign on a fast boat when he returns to sea in about a month.

"They can't get out of the way of a torpedo," he said.

"I was asleep in my bunk in the forecabin when the first torpedo struck us forward," he said. "When I awoke all I could smell was gunpowder and the whole ship rocked.

"In three minutes the crew, eighteen in one boat and seventeen in another, was clear of the ship and when the second torpedo hit amidships were fifty feet from her, but no one ever saw the sub that sunk us."

"The ship x x x went down in 625 feet of water less than five seconds after the second torpedo tipped her apart."

Subs Work By Moonlight

"Traveling in the same course as Webster's ship and about three hours ahead, another ship similar to ours was torpedoed, and all but three of her crew died."

He said "those subs work between 11 p. m. and 3 a. m. by the light of the moon, picking off ships like ducks."

As for the bombing in Suez—before the United States entered the war—Webster described it as "all in the game."

"Even with the American flag painted on our decks, bombs fell so close you could throw a half dollar in the ripples of the water."

Later, when his ship ran aground in the Red sea near Beden, Arabia, last September, Webster spent three months in an East Africa port while repairs were made.

Celestial Body Close to Earth

Astronomers Say Comet or "Minor Planet" Almost Set New Record

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 15 (AP)—Harvard astronomers report that latest calculations of the path of a celestial object which is either a comet or a "minor planet" indicated that the body probably came within a million miles of the earth—a near record for visitors from space—before receding.

Commenting on reports from two Berkeley, Calif., astronomers concerning the first computation of a "probable path" for an object originally sighted more than a month ago, the Harvard astronomers said that if the postulated positions were correct, the object approached closer to the earth than any comet.

And they added that only one other larger celestial object—the minor planet "Hermes" which zoomed within 475,000 miles of the earth in 1937—ever had come closer.

"If the calculations are correct," one astronomer said, "the object came exceedingly close to the earth sometime during the last month—and was probably as close as one million miles from the earth before it started to recede."

He estimated it was moving at a twenty-mile-a-second clip.

The available evidence suggests, the astronomers declared, that the

Lieut. Col. W. D. Wise To Succeed Koontz

BALTIMORE, April 15 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Walter D. Wise, chief surgeon of Mercy hospital since March 24, 1933, will become medical director of the State Selective system April 21.

Col. Henry C. Stanwood, State Selective Service director, said Col. Wise had been called to active duty on that date and would succeed Lieut. Col. Amos Koontz as medical head of Maryland draft system.

Col. Koontz commands one of the two Johns Hopkins base hospital units and will leave Baltimore Monday. Both units have been ordered to active duty. He will go to South Carolina.

Dr. Wise said that he intended to continue his duties as chief surgeon, at least for the time being.

A native of Leonardtown, Md., he was educated by private tutors and at the University of Maryland and College of Physicians and Surgeons. Since his graduation in 1906 he has been connected with Mercy hospital.

Old Jug Bridge Will Be Demolished

FREDERICK, Md., April 15 (AP)—There'll be nothing left of the Old Jug bridge next week but the piers and the old demijohn which gave the span its name.

Demolition squads have dynamited sections of the historic stone span to make way for construction of a temporary bridge to carry traffic over Monocacy river on U. S. 40.

The bridge was closed several weeks ago when one of five arches fell into the river. The remaining two sections will be blasted next week, state roads commission officials said.

Engineers used 700 pounds of dynamite to knock out the two spans yesterday, and the debris partly blocked Monocacy river.

Through traffic on U. S. 40 between Baltimore and Frederick is being detoured temporarily over nearby state routes.

Victory Gardens Must Be Removed from Annapolis Streets

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 14 (AP)—The city council heartily approves Victory gardens—but not when they're grown in city street beds.

Some patriotic Annapolitans, councilmen discovered last night, have planted vegetable gardens along the Amos Garrett Boulevard right of way and at the foot of Smith avenue.

Alderman Jesse A. Fisher, Street committee chairman, contended that "things are not so bad that it is necessary to use city streets for Victory gardens." The council ordered the gardens removed.

object is a comet, with material diffused over a large area, but they said there also was a possibility that it might be an asteroid, or "minor planet," having a diameter of about 500 feet.

The closest any previous comet ever came to the earth was a million-and-a-half miles—Lexell's comet in 1770.

Intestinal Worms Get into the Body from Uncooked Foods, Physician Says

LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D., in North America are usually quite harmless, although they always alarm the parents when they are found. The kind of worms we have discovered. Or they alarm an adult when he finds he has passed part of a tapeworm.

There are three kinds of intestinal worms, all common in North America. One is the tapeworm which occurs mostly in adults and the other two are pinworms and roundworms which occur almost entirely in children.

From Uncooked Foods

Each of them has a somewhat different life history, but they all get into the body from uncooked food. The ordinary tapeworm deposits its eggs in the muscles of pigs and cattle and therefore is found in pork and beef and unless these are entirely cooked and their eggs destroyed, they may thrive in the human intestine and develop into an adult tapeworm. It has been figured that exposure to about 50 degrees of heat for a period of four to five hours is sufficient to destroy the eggs in the meat, so that ordinary cooking should do this.

Somewhat or other in a number of cases this is not done, and an egg lodges in the intestine and begins to grow into an adult tapeworm. It buries its head in a fold of the intestine rather high up and as the worm grows, it may attain a length of ten to thirty yards. Eventually it appears in the stool and nearly scares the possessor to death. The old superstition to the effect that a tapeworm makes people thin and that it absorbs food has no foundation. Even a thirty-six yard worm does not represent more than a good, solid meal.

Treatment of Tapeworm

The treatment of tapeworm is one of the easiest things in medicine. There are any number of drugs which will kill the worm such as male fern, peiperine and pumpkin seed. The great difficulty of course is to kill the head and for this reason careful preparation is necessary to prepare the intestine by giving a saline cathartic in order to cleanse the intestine completely.

Roundworms and pinworms are childhood diseases. Pinworms may give a great deal of trouble. They are very small and the eggs are found on the surface of fruit. The way to prevent them therefore is to wash all fruit carefully before giving it to children. The worst trouble is that they infect the lower bowel, crawl out of the anus and attach themselves to the child's skin, causing intense itching, discomfort and, with scratching, infection.

Treatment should be directed not only at removal of worms from the bowl, but also from the skin, the bed clothes and the underwear where they may frequently be found. The bed clothes and underwear should be changed quite frequently and boiled to prevent re-infection from these sources.

The best drug to use in treatment of roundworms is chenopodium. It may be given either by mouth or in the form of an enema.

Questions and Answers

A. C.: "After the surgical repair of a hernia, how long should the patient refrain from any heavy work? Would the period be affected by the fact that the repair was that of a previous hernia, or the use of a spinal anesthetic?"

Answer: The surgeon is the best judge of how long a patient should refrain from working after a hernia repair. Patients are usually kept in bed for at least two weeks, but when the repair is of a previous hernia, it usually requires a longer time for healing. The use of a spinal anesthetic has no influence.

R. W.: Our children do not eat vegetables so well. Are raw vegetables as good for them as the cooked ones, such as carrots, cabbage, potatoes, celery, tomatoes and the like?

Answer: Very few children like vegetables. They are more or less of an acquired taste. Childhood days are made horrible by food faddists who insist on children's eating vegetables. Raw vegetables are just as good for them as the cooked vegetables. Meat is very good for children.

W. R. C.: "Can chronic uremia, nephritis or Bright's disease exist if the urine has been analyzed and found o. k.? Or will only a blood test determine this?"

Answer: With real Bright's disease the urine always shows abnormalities. Too much emphasis has been placed by some physicians on the blood changes that occur in this condition.

School and Home Alliance Urged By Doctor Myers

Parent Teacher Association
Has Done Much to Aid Cooperation

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
With few exceptions, the school year by year, has grown farther and farther from the home. But as the war goes on, the school should, by all means, get closer to the home. More and more school children are coming from homes of anxious and nervous strain over the war. More children, especially in defense areas, are coming from crowded homes, and homes in which many mothers work outside the home. Consider, too, the large number of children whose families move or whose father is far away from home. This absence of the father may affect these children seriously in many ways.

It must be obvious to any teacher that an increasing number of her children lack adequate understanding, guidance and affection at home. To many of these children the school is about the only place where this lack can partially be supplied. It is not enough that the child be treated with consideration at school. Indeed, he cannot be treated as a person, to a high degree, unless his teacher knows of his emotional background at home, knows his parents, knows the nature of his treatment, guidance and relationship there. Knowing the child's home very well, the teacher can often help his parents understand him better.

Parent Teacher Association. The Parent Teacher Association has, in many places, done more than any other agency to help parents try to understand their children better and to help the teacher know the home better, therefore, to know better the children coming from the home. It was founded, indeed, with its major purpose to promote better parenthood. More than any other organization in America, it has stimulated and provided study groups for parents through which they might learn to become better parents and enjoy happier family life.

There was a time when this purpose was realized quite fully. But in recent years this part of the program has had, with but few exceptions, a very minor role. Honest-to-goodness parents study groups, based on their family relations and self-improvement of parenthood, are relatively rare in local units of the P. T. A.

Happy Family Life
It seems to me that right now better parenthood and happy family life should have foremost emphasis in every parent-teacher unit and that this service should place far more emphasis on the state and national program than has been the case during recent years.

If the Parent Teacher Association continues at the present rate to decline in this major purpose for which it was founded, it will lose its soul and die and leave its skeleton of machinery hanging in the archives.

It is distressing to me to observe throughout the United States, in recent years, many school systems, under the guise of economy, pushing the elementary school farther from the home by assigning one person to serve as principal of two or more large elementary schools. Is not a good elementary principal the personal medium between teachers and parents, and the inspirer of both to understand the child better and treat him more as an individual person?

A selected list of books designed to help parents and teachers understand the child better and treat him more as a sacred personality may be had by writing me at 235 East Forty-fifth street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems
Q Do you believe in paying the child for helping about the home?
A As a rule, no. How is he to feel he is a responsible member of the family if you do? Let him have some regular jobs he can't escape. If, however, he is working to accumulate a fund for a definite purchase, he might properly be paid for a few irregular, special jobs.

Q To what extent would you allow a child of 10 or 14 to change about the furniture and wall hangings of his or her room?

A As much as the child liked without marring or destroying any of it or causing undue hardship to any other person.

Q When should a child be allowed to help choose the clothes which must be bought for him?
A As early as he likes, hoping that in his early teens he could wisely choose alone within a specified budget.

Q Should a child under eight or 10 eat with dinner guests in the home?

A Depending on the child and the guests. If the child has good eating habits and is easily managed and if the guests understand and appreciate and enjoy children and know how to treat them well, all should profit from the presence of the child; especially the child.

THE DAILY STORY

MILK

The Moment the Copper's Pistol Flamed Red, He Knew He Had Never Been Cut Out for a Life of Crime

(Copyright by United Feature Syndicate)

By ALICE DRAKE

The man stood in the hall of the three-story building. He lit a cigarette with nervous fingers and looked at his head out of the door. There was no sign of the milkman. The milkman were delayed somewhere it would become more complicated. It would soon be light. Someone might see him. It would be much easier, he reasoned, if it were in a better neighborhood where people were not early risers. The people living around here were mostly factory workers. They got up in the middle of the night, it seemed.

He felt restless and wished he had a drink of whiskey. His thoughts wandered to Dillinger, and he wondered if they felt the same. He did on their first jobs. Everything seemed to frighten him; the cans turning in the wind, and his breath and straining every muscle. He made out the motor idling in front of the building. His insides leaped and burning sweat filled his eyes. Police! The thought paralyzed his body. He licked salty sweat off his lips. Of a sudden he wanted to run, but couldn't. His body felt weighed to the floor. If he did not act quickly he was sure to be trapped. There were just a

His arms, legs and back ached and head throbbed so that he felt weak. He wondered why they were taking so long. Their silence was maddening. He clenched his fists, the blood swirled hot through his veins. The strength in his fingers slowly gave. His arms sank to the floor few minutes of night left. If he ran and was picked off like a rabbit, what would become of his family? The thought sickened him.

He held his breath

He braced himself to climb the stairs, hoping to find a rear entrance. The car door opened and closed. He covered. A circle of light hit the wall. Voices mumbled, the thief closed his eyes and balled himself in the corner.

The lovers finally drew apart. The girl ran upstairs. Her friend drove off. The thief sighed snapping the sweat off his chin. His desire to steal thinned. He wanted to leave and go back home. But what of Julie and Roy and Tom? The thought of them again strengthened his determination. The milk wagon came in view and stopped across the street. He watched with growing alarm. The driver climbed out of the wagon and into the back entrance of a house.

The man stepped out of the hall. He tightened his belt and made for the wagon. He looked around, swallowed, then reached in and grabbed a half-gallon of milk.

He hurried away into an alley, his arm over the bulge in his jacket. He looked back and smiled, feeling proud of himself. It was a neat job. Thoughts of the night revolved in his mind; he'd learned he was not cut out for crime. He took longer strides and came within sight of his home.

"Hey, you!" a voice yelled. The thief's heart drummed against the roof of his mouth. He turned his head. He saw no one.

"Hey!" Fear gripped him. A car motor sputtered and choked. He looked back again. This time he was not mistaken. The squad car was parked under a tree and two plainclothesmen were climbing out.

"C'mere, you!" The thief felt weakened. He tried the door of a yard. It was locked. He pushed at the door of the one adjoining, but it was closed, too. "C'mere, you!"

He broke in a run, holding down the bulge. The policemen came fast behind.

"Ya dirty—"

Crack! The shot whined in the air.

Crack! The thief retched and showed down and stopped finally, breathing in jerks. His fingers clutched weakly at the bulge in his jacket. The bottle fell and broke at his feet. He swallowed painfully and closed his eyes to the clattering sparrows and the morning sun.

Orphan in Diamonds

by LORENA CARLETON

CHAPTER FORTY-SIX
THE FIRST person Anette saw while strolling along Palm Canyon drive in Palm Springs was August. They fell upon each other with cries of mutual delight.

"Why didn't you let me know you were going to have time off at Easter?" demanded August. She was leading the girl, by the elbow, across the street to the Chi Chi club. "I'd have invited you to be our guest, Ted and I have a house here."

Anette smiled. "Where don't you and Ted have a house? Do you keep track of them with a fling system?"

The red-haired woman gave a deprecating shrug. "It's just a little place. But we have room for you. Now you must move from your hotel immediately."

"Thank you, August, but you see I'm visiting Lois Lyndon."

The older woman's face changed color beneath her wide white linen hat. "So the James Lyndon affair is not entirely publicity? And all along I've thought it was. Silly of me when I know how much he adores you." She lifted the colored straw in her Cuba Libre. "What about Larry?"

"That's what I'd like to know." Traces of the dejection she had endured blazed her voice with fresh bitterness. "I've got to make an attempt to find him. That's why I'm quitting Zenith in June."

August slumped to one elbow and said incredulously, "Don't tell me that stuff about your retiring is true also? I simply cannot believe it."

The girl drew a slow, deep breath. "August, I'm so tired that just breathing exhausts me. And don't forget, I found it hard to believe when you really quit."

"There's absolutely no similarity." The flame-haired woman's eyebrows lifted in meaning semi-circles. "I, my little lamb, was beginning to creak and groan, but you—heavens, Anette, you're still a baby!"

She looked at the girl's thin face with the faint shadows beneath her gorgeous eyes. "I'll admit you do look a bit done in. And why not? They've worked you like a dog. But mark my words, two weeks away from this kind of work and you'll be turning flipflops of eagerness to get back to it."

Anette's eyes rose from the Indian bracelet about her tanned wrist. "You're wrong, August. When I marry Jimmy I'll never work again. And I want to marry Jimmy. That's why I'm so determined to find Larry and tell him I want to be free."

August gave the girl a penetrating look. "You don't have to see Larry to be free. All you have to do is prove you don't know where he is and you should have plenty of letters to prove that."

Beneath the straps of her play-suit, Anette's shoulders moved squirmingly like those of a cross-examined child. And the daisies, woven into shining black pigtail, fluttered as she tossed her head with determination. "But I want to see Larry, if it is possible."

Watching the unhappy girl, August felt as if her eyeballs were of fire. "But, darling, where do you intend to look? It is so hopeless. As I understand, good detectives looked for months without finding—"

Abruptly Anette seemed so filled with freshly born doubt that August hated herself for having caused it. Yet she had to make the girl realize how futile her quest might be. She repeated, "Where are you going to look?"

"Oh," Anette replied, frowning. "The same places. That's all I know to do. Even though I've waited through almost a year and a half of neglect on Larry's part I can't bear to treat him with such consideration. I have to try to find him before I marry Jimmy Lyndon."

"Larry should stop hiding in caves like Jesse James, or whatever he is doing," decreed August. "and do a play. Enough time has passed to deaden that Sandra Owens affair—with a New York audience anyway. They would welcome a Laurence Peyton play." Her eyes were dreamy and contemplative. "I can just see him stealing scenes and bows from the leading lady. And I can hear the applause like the loud continuous roar of a waterfall."

"You seem to forget," reminded Anette in a tortured voice, "that Larry is apt to have a face no one would care to see."

For a moment August's features were so sad and relaxed that the shadowed grooves showed plainly. Then she shrugged aside her misgivings. "Not Larry," she said with a slow sideways motion of her head. "I simply refuse to believe that Larry will not pull out of his trouble. He always has. You know he's really blessed by some wonderful charm. Everything is bound to turn out all right," she said firmly. She was smiling happily.

After their parting, Anette realized that the red-haired woman actually had managed to deaden her own qualms with her own words. To her Larry was not battered, not scarred nor tossed aside. To August he still was her handsome leading man. She refused to have him any other way. It made her too uncomfortable—momentarily.

The girl realized also how right Verrazano had been the day after her marriage when he had preached the utter disinterest August Drake felt for Laurence Peyton, except professionally. If Anette could have believed him then, she would have been happy. Now she knew how ghastly true it was and it made her sad. August had no professional enthusiasm; consequently she felt no responsibility. Her friendship was sweet and fluffy, like meringue on a pie.

Oh, she would be interested in a stage success for Larry. She would sit there on opening night beside wealthy Ted Beckman, wearing jewels and a new gown, enjoying Laurence Peyton's achievement, but enjoying her own more, the craning of heads, the whispers and nudges, and the recognition that would greet her. August Drake! August Drake! Yes, she would like that.

Anette left about mid-June, directly from the Grand Canyon where the company had been shooting outdoor scenes for her last picture. Lois and Jimmy Lyndon were there to say goodbye to her.

"I still think we should go with you. It's such a long trip for a girl alone," said James Lyndon, still clinging with tenacity to the argument he had been giving the dark-haired girl through the past two months.

"You're very sweet, Jimmy. Anette kissed him several times with real devotion. "But you must not worry. I'll be all right."

He shook his head doubtfully but Lois cut in before he could make further protests. "Don't be absurd, Jimmy. I've made dozens of cross-country trips alone. After all, she is not traveling in a covered wagon. She threw her arms about the young actress in a gesture of farewell. "Dumb men! A woman has to explain everything to them."

Anette was glad to find Larry's mother walking down the long lane to the mail box. Many memories connected with her previous trip to the Green Groves chicken farm surged through her, making her thankful not to have to enter the house. She stopped her car directly beside the slim little gray-haired woman, who put her wiry hands through the window and clasped Anette's extended ones. Her thin lips quivered and tears filled her eyes. Yet there was something in her manner, a sort of reticence, that made the girl uncomfortable.

She said quickly, "Of course you know why I'm here, for the same reason I wrote you all those letters." Her topaz eyes were fixed imploringly on those of the elderly woman.

"That woman shook her head in a denial, then dropped it over the little mound that was her two pairs of hands. Teardrops rolled from her eyes. "For months I've been thinking I could find out something, that I would be able to write you. Perhaps I will soon."

Anette said, "I can't go on like this."

"If I knew anything to tell you I would. Perhaps I will soon," Larry's mother repeated.

The girl said, "This is my last attempt to find Larry. And it is most important that I do."

She noticed again that same little reticent action on the part of Larry's mother. She even took her hands off the girl's and stepped back. "I understand." Her voice was barely audible as she added, "James Lyndon." It was more than reticence. It approached hostility.

Instead of answering the accusation, Anette murmured, "Goodbye," then put her car into reverse and backed slowly down the lane. The interview, though brief, had been one of such tension that she realized she was shaking. She remembered that she had eaten no lunch and pulled in beside a little rustic roadside place.

"A chicken sandwich and a glass of milk." She put a coin in the phonograph machine, then slapped more money upon the counter. "Keep that music going. Loud and funny."

"All right," said the fat proprietor. He squinted his eyes. "Lady, you look tuckered. Why don't you let me fix you a table out in the side garden under the arbor? It's cooler and you still can hear your music."

The sandwich he brought her was made of crusty, fresh homemade bread and the breast of chicken. The milk was cool and clotted with cream.

The proprietor handed her a small tin bell like those worn by young calves. "Ring this if you want more to eat."

The girl lay back in a barrel-staves hammock and pushed herself with one toe. She gazed at walls and a roof of honeysuckle vines. A little green world all her own.

She picked up the calf bell and rang it, then again, louder the second time. Mildly disgruntled after a while, she got up and walked into the cafe just as the owner was yelling goodbye to a customer.

Anette said, "I'm still hungry. By the way, I rang that bell five times and nothing happened."

"I heard you," the fat man told her. "But I couldn't get rid of that guy. He says I'm so slow that to try and make me walk double-time." He glowered and smiled at once. "The crazy wop!"

Anette's fingers, that had been pressing buttons on the record machine, froze in the air. Then she stepped to the screen door and looked out.

Trudging along a little side road that led to a small building of green shingles was Verrazano.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS AND FRAZZLED NERVOUSNESS GIVEN RELIEF

Beckley Nazarene Church Lady Elated Over New Feeling of Returning Health and Energy

Mrs. Oscar Greene, 507 Temple St., a busy housewife and mother of 9 children says:

"I think World's Tonic is the grandest medicine in the world. I guess there must be hundreds of other Beckley people who feel the same way. Constipation brought a number of ailments to me and caused a lot of suffering that I might have avoided with World's Tonic. I had bilious spells and headaches from a disordered liver. Dark spots floated past my eyes and a giddy light headed feeling often came too. I had a lot of indigestion distresses. Gas, sour stomach and acid rising bothered me a lot after meals. Bloating was another distressing problem. Heartburn was terrible at times and soda only gave me a temporary relief. All these things made me nervous and jumpy as could be."

"Now, since World's Tonic has relieved my constipation, and its resulting ailments, in such a complete manner, there has been a marked improvement in my health. The gassy bloated stomach condition is greatly relieved and the indigestion attacks seem about over."

Waste Paper Salvage
Campaign Proves
Popular in Maryland
BALTIMORE, April 15. (AP)—A Waste Paper Salvage official said today the waste paper salvage campaign in Maryland was so successful it has jammed the waste paper consumption industries beyond capacity.
James P. Solley, Jr., commercial representative of the WPA Industrial Conservation Bureau, said the jam in paper was only temporary and efforts were being made to break it immediately.
He asked those who were unable to dispose of their paper through regular industrial channels in the next few weeks to be patient.
The housewives, the Boy Scouts,
the Maryland Salvage Committee,
the Baltimore Salvage Committee and others who are aiding have done a real job of collecting, Solley said.
He added that although there was sufficient paper at least for a few days, old metal and rubber were needed desperately.
Lessing J. Rosenwald, chief of the WPA Bureau of Industrial Conservation, said the paper campaign had been so successful on a national scale that most paper mills were able to meet all current orders.

SHOWING HIGH CARDS
BIDDING exactly one more than necessary to overcall the preceding bid is invariably with the card strength rather than length of suit. You have no basis for treating a bid of that kind by your partner as telling you that the cards would be satisfactory support for his holding. He may have only a four-card suit, and some other declaration may be better.

By his utterly incorrect call 4-Hearts, South gave his partner a score on this deal in the early championships. The defender got tricks with the heart A, and 9, holding the declarer to an act game.

At every other table 6-3 Trumps got bid and made, although in most of these cases East opened with 1-Spade. Where the bidding started as given above, South should have realized that North had made the strongest possible bid under the circumstances. Instead of minimum 2-Hearts over South's double, he had bid one more than necessary when he called 4-Hearts. This should have told South that North had about a near to an opening bid as he could possibly hold, in view of his original pass, so far as high cards were concerned.

South's best bid after that natural bidding was employed would have been 6-No Trumps, which could have been made with out any difficulty. If the side was using any sort of slam convention to locate aces and kings, then South could easily have found out that North held two kings, and consequently must have had his bid something else as between the two missing jacks and the two missing queens. With East's opening bid obviously shaded, South could be sure that his own tenaces were well placed over whatever intermediate honors East might hold.

For economy serve meat which can take the place of a large roast. It should be made uncooked rather than leftover meat and may be made of one meat in combinations, such as one-half beef, one-third pork and one-third chicken. A popular sized meat made from three pounds of meat should be cooked for about 1 1/2 hours at 325 degrees Fahrenheit.

Quick Work Saves Life of Girl Who Fell in Reservoir

Margaret Belt, 4, Is Revived by Artificial Respiration

Artificial respiration administered by Robert O. Slemmer, 26, Park Heights, saved the life of little Margaret Belt, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl O. Belt, Park Heights, after she had fallen into a reservoir half a block from her home, shortly before noon yesterday.

Almost as much credit for saving the girl's life was given to her three-year-old sister, Edna Frances, who told neighbors and her mother of the accident.

Mrs. Belt and Slemmer said Margaret fell through rotten boards covering the reservoir and was unable to get out. After being in the reservoir from ten to fifteen minutes, she was floating unconscious in the water when help arrived.

At Allegany hospital where she was taken for treatment physicians said Slemmer's efforts alone saved the girl's life. If he had not applied artificial respiration immediately, they said, the girl's life would have been beyond saving.

After her sister fell into the reservoir, Edna Frances, realizing she needed help, told neighbors and her mother.

Floating in Water

Arriving at the scene, Mrs. Belt said she saw her daughter floating in the water. Working frantically, she tore boards from the covering and removed the girl.

Slemmer said he heard Mrs. Belt scream and rushed to the reservoir. He took the girl from her arms. Mrs. Belt said, and applied artificial respiration. Slemmer worked over the girl for approximately fifteen minutes before she began breathing again. Once she started breathing, she was wrapped in blankets to keep her warm.

Corp. Harold Carl and Trooper Graydon S. Dunlap, of the State Police, arrived in the meantime and then rushed the girl to the hospital where she was given additional treatment. She was taken to her home yesterday evening.

A few minutes before the accident occurred, Mrs. Belt said she cautioned the children against playing near the reservoir.

Thought Bitten by Dog

Slemmer said when he first heard Mrs. Belt scream he thought one of the children had been bitten by a dog. There are quite a few in the neighborhood, he added.

Employed by the local telephone company, Slemmer declared he has been interested in first aid since he was a member of the Boy Scouts. For the past five years he has been taking first aid courses, prescribed at different times by the telephone company.

Although he has had quite a lot of first aid experience, Slemmer said this was the first time he was directly responsible for saving anyone's life. On several occasions, he said, he helped give first aid to boys at Scout camps but at those times there had been other youths around to help.

His part in saving the girl's life was a "coincidence," Slemmer said. He is on his vacation and had been working in the yard at his home, carrying dirt from the yard to dump it along the road. It just happened, he related, that he carried the dirt in the direction of the reservoir when he heard the mother's scream. All the other loads he had carried in another direction and probably would not have been able to hear a scream from the reservoir at that distance.

The reservoir, Slemmer said, supplies about twelve families with water.

M. Nelson Bond, Race Horse Owner, Succumbs At Home in Towson

Word was received here yesterday of the death of M. Nelson Bond, 54, insurance man and former race horse owner, who succumbed Tuesday at his home in Towson, Md.

Bond operated the Englewood stock farm in Long Green valley, Baltimore county, for seventeen years, and for the past ten years he and his three sons, J. Bowes, Bernard P., and M. Nelson Bond, Jr., raced their horses at the Cumberland fair grounds.

His racing stable produced a number of outstanding handicap horses which raced under his scarlet and gray colors on Maryland and other eastern tracks. Local racing fans will recall the names of four of his outstanding horses, Peneader, Hunting Home, Sure Miss and Small Change, which were the foremost entries from the Bond farm.

Bond was one of the oldest members of the Maryland Jockey Club and was also a former secretary and treasurer of the Maryland Horsebreeders' Association.

Funeral services will be held today from his home with interment in Druid Ridge cemetery.

Police Continue Theft Investigation

Police last night still were investigating the theft of about $17 from a cash register at the G. C. Murphy company store, Baltimore street, Tuesday afternoon shortly before 5 o'clock.

Two, or possibly three, boys used a previously stolen key to open the register and remove the money, police said. The amount of money taken was at first reported to be $12.

City Tax Office Hours Are Changed Will Be Open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. in the Future Council Decides

The tax collector's office at city hall will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. as a result of a three to one vote at yesterday's session of the mayor and city council.

Commissioner James Orr opposed the order while Commissioner William J. Edwards was not present. There was a heated exchange of words between Mayor Thomas F. Conlon and James M. Conway, tax collector, over the changing of office hours. The office formerly has been open from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m.

After a report by Dr. John K. Rozum was read, Francis P. "Patsy" Leo, police officer, was ordered "furloughed indefinitely" and will be paid $50 monthly during the "disability." Dr. Rozum recommended an "extensive rest."

The finance commissioner was authorized to borrow $20,000 for the general account. This money is needed to run the city until tax funds begin to come in.

With dynamite removed from the new Cumberland airport, the services of the watchmen Lee Snider and George B. McLaughlin were ordered discontinued.

Books Will Be Collected Friday For Armed Forces

This second "Victory Book Campaign" is announced by President

An "all out" drive to collect good books for men in the armed forces of the United States will be held here Friday, Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian of the Cumberland Free Public Library, announced yesterday.

This second "Victory Book Campaign," announced Tuesday by President Roosevelt at his press conference, will supplement the book drive staged throughout the country several months ago. This campaign, however, will be completed in one day rather than over a period of weeks as before.

Miss Walsh said the library will give the campaign its "fullest co-operation" and will receive books all day Friday. A number of local stores also will serve as auxiliary depositories, she said.

Oscar A. Eyerman, chief of police, said he had received a letter from John M. Connor, director of the campaign, announcing the drive and requesting that police headquarters be made an auxiliary depot for depositing books.

Books left at police headquarters, as well as at other auxiliary depots, will be turned over to the library for disposition.

Connor said in his letter to Eyerman that although men in the service — soldiers, sailors and marines — are fighting and training to fight, they still have time to read and are requesting good books.

The book campaign conducted several months ago fell about fifty per cent short of its goal in the nation.

Books Will Be Collected Friday For Armed Forces

This is the second of a series prepared by Louis C. Burr, state rationing administrator and the regional office of the OPA designed to answer frequently asked questions regarding the coming rationing of sugar to consumers on May 4 through May 7.

Q — Must all members of the family apply for their war ration books individually?

A — No. Only two classes of people may apply. They are: (A) Individuals of any age who are not a part of any family unit. (B) Individuals who are applying for an entire family unit. One adult member 18 years of age or over, or any married member of the family unit and ONE ONLY is permitted to apply for War Ration Books for each and every member of the family unit.

Q — Can a person who is not a member of a family unit and who is away from home on registration days apply wherever he may be?

A — Yes. For instance, traveling salesmen, not members of family units, may apply wherever they happen to be.

Q — What about persons who are members of family units but who are away from home for a week or two? a traveling salesman for example?

A — They should be considered as a member of the family unit. Wives or other responsible members of the family may apply for their books.

Q — What if a person is away for two or three months — say a college student?

A — He must apply for and get his own book in the town where he is temporarily residing.

Q — What about minors who are not members of a family unit?

A — Application for ration books for persons under 18 years of age who are not members of a family unit may be made by a guardian or other responsible adult.

Q — Suppose I do not wish to buy sugar at all?

A — Then the thing for you to do is to register like everyone else, but don't take a ration book.

Fort Hill Graduate Survives Sinking Of U. S. Vessel

Marcus W. Volk, Jr., Land- ed at Jacksonville, Fla., after Torpedoing

One of the survivors of two ships torpedoed off the Atlantic coast and landed at Jacksonville, Fla., is Marcus W. Volk, Jr., 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Volk, Sr., of Brad-dock Farms.

Bradcock is listed as a fireman on an unnamed vessel and is a graduate of Fort Hill high school. His father is an employee of the Gulf Oil Company and recently received a gold emblem for ten years' service with the firm.

An Associated Press dispatch from Jacksonville says twenty others are dead or missing and given up for lost in the sinkings which were announced by the Navy. Both were "off the Atlantic coast." Of the missing and dead, nineteen were from one of the ships, a medium-sized vessel with a crew of forty-eight. The other craft, a small commercial ship, lost only one man from a crew of forty.

Two torpedoes smashed into the larger ship on the night of April 10 and the submarine surfaced to fire five or six shells into the sinking hulk. The other vessel was struck by a single torpedo early on the morning of April 9. No effort was made to shell the survivors in either case and they were picked up within a few hours.

In the group of thirty-nine survivors, determination to return to the sea as swiftly as possible seemed almost unanimous and even though those from the other ship had a much rougher time, their attitude seemed well summed up by Chief Engineer Vasco R. Geer, 57, of Port Arthur, Texas, who declared:

"Our soldiers and sailors can't fight without supplies and we'll see that they get them."

Captain O. Anderson of the larger ship and Captain A. L. Case of Springfield, N. Y., master of the other craft, both praised the calm courage of their crews and the sailors joined in lauding the Navy for its prompt rescue and counter attack measures.

Prayer and Faith Needed, Church Leader Declares

The Rev. O. B. Langrall Speaks at Central Methodist Church

The Rev. O. B. Langrall, superintendent of the Hagerstown District of the Methodist church, speaking at the midweek service at Central Methodist church, this city, called on Christians for a more genuine faith and more earnest prayer.

Basing his talk on the attitude of the penitent thief on the cross, the Rev. Mr. Langrall stated that extreme conditions either hardened or softened the hearts of men. The one thief rallied on the Christ with the multitude. The other recognized His divinity. His faith was greater than that of even the friends of Jesus, for he alone expected Him to enter into his kingship. He was the only one present who anticipated any real future for the Son of Man. Inspired by his faith, he prayed, "Do not forget me when thou enterest into thy kingdom." Jesus answered the thief on the cross. He also will answer all who from the depths of suffering call upon Him, the minister said.

Anglers Report Fair Catches On Opening Day

Cumberlander Catches Two 17-Inch Trout, 8 Others in Evitts Creek

Western Maryland anglers had "fairly good luck" on the opening day of trout season yesterday, Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke reported last night, adding that several fishermen caught to creel limit of ten despite somewhat unfavorable stream conditions as result of last week's heavy rains.

The prize catch was reported by George Haines, of 310 Estelle street, who hooked ten large trout, Evitts creek, none of them less than ten inches in length. Two of the were real beauties, measuring sixteen inches in length. One of these big ones that didn't get away was a rainbow, the other a brook trout.

Two Others Catch Limit

At least two other fishermen caught their limits on Evitts creek but their names could not be learned.

Minke estimated that 300 or more anglers crowded the banks of Evitts creek, Allegany county's principal trout stream, and said it was probably fished harder yesterday than ever before because fishermen, like everybody else, are confronted with the spectre of no tires when present ones wear out and hesitate to drive to more distant trout waters.

Fishermen on Bear creek in Garrett county also reported good catches, the average creel containing from three to six fish, most of them several inches longer than the legal size of seven inches. There were few if any anglers who returned home with empty creels, according to the game warden, and at least one Bear creek angler caught his limit.

Five Fish Cherry Creek

Because of confusion as to the opening date of the season for Cherry creek, those Garrett county waters were practically a fishermen's paradise yesterday, with only five anglers on hand to try their skill at fly-casting, the only type of fishing permitted there. All of them caught something, it was reported, and two caught the limit of five allowed in such restricted waters. An 18-inch brown trout was the proud catch of one of the Cherry creek sportsmen.

About 200 anglers were fishing Bear creek, Minke said, declaring that this was a smaller number than usual. Many of those who fished the Garrett streams in the past were lining Evitts creek, near their home, he said.

There was a goodly number of puzzle run, including Fulcher, Smith, member of the Maryland Game and Inland Fish Commission, and Mrs. Smith. Mrs. Smith had the thrill of catching her first trout and then hooked another one of good measure while her husband was catching six.

No report was immediately available on Savage river.

Minke said that so far as regulations on opening day.

The weather was ideal for the sport, and the warden predicted that if it continues, conditions should be excellent for the week end, when even more anglers are expected to turn out and try their luck.
